SURPRISING CASE.

Mr. Aley. W. Harris, a prominent lawyer at No. 1005 G st. n. w., Washington, D. C., under date of Jan. 11th, 1890, wrote to the A. B. C. Chemical Co., Richmond, Va., giving the history of a case of skin eruption of 20 years' standing, the result of malignant blood disease. (At this time Mr. Harris had been unable to walk for six months) In reply he was directed to use A. B. C. Alterat ve with the assurance that he would be cured. March 1st, 1890, Mr Harris again wrote the A. B. C. Chemical Co. in the following words: "The improvement in my case so far is almost miraculous. I am really getting well, and can walk as well as I ever could, and my general health was never better. I shall write you from time to time. Meantime you can refer any one to me you desire, and I shall certainly tell them that the A. B. C. Alterative has done me more good in two months than has 20 years' experience with various eminent physiciaus and all other remedies tried" Under date of April 7th, 1890, Mr. Harris wrote, "I am entirely well."

A Queer Crew of Mohammedans.

As soon as the sun went down Tuesday evening forty seven dusky sons of Hindoostan knelt upon the deck of the good ship Kara man'a and anointed themselves with oil, and with many gesticulations prayed fervently to Allah to guide and protect them in a strange land.

The vessel had just arrived at Pier No. 47, on the Delaware river. The men are Bengalese and Malays, and they were engaged by Captain Young in Calcutta. It is the first time that such a crew has ever been brought to Phisadelphia. They make good, steady seamen, but they lack the strength and endurance of Europeans, as well as the desire for rum and tobacco. They are very religious and pray five times a day. They believe that if they are good they will go to Paradise when they die and have innumer-able wives. The number of their hours in beaven depends upon their behavior on earth, and, therefore, they pray and call upon Allah at every opportunity.

The Islamites are very particular about their food. They will not eat anything that has been killed or dressed by an infidel. They have their own butcher on board. He is a very intelligent Bengalese, his name is Nure Mohamad, and he is called "the butler." His method of the scatted the control of the scatter throats, and then let them bleed to death.

The men are horrified at the sight of pork, and they all love rice and curry.

Every new moon they make a holiday, dress up in fine clothes, and march around the ship, chanting passages from the Koran, and calling upon the lady moon to give them loss of wives. They are virtuous on earth, and save themselves to have a good time when they get to Paradise,

All of them are fatalists, and firmly believe that when they get the straight tip from Allah, by a vision or otherwise, that they must die at once. Any delay would subject them to no end of trouble in the future life, and reduce the size of their harem. Two men received the myslic message during the voyage and they jumped overboard. The others envied them, and thought how they must be enjoying themselves.

Captain Young says that he engaged the crew in Calcutta, and he is well satisfied with them. The English government holds the Anchor Line responsible for the well being and enfety of the men, and they can only be brought to America because the Karamania touches Liverpool on her journey from India. No native crews are allowed on vessels going direct to a foreign port from India. The Karamania brings over a valuable cargo of linesed. - Phila. Record.

LAST OF THE GREAT EASTERN .- Who would recognize in the shattered bull which now lies at low tide high and dry on the New Ferry shore of the Mersey the Great Eastern, which, in 1858, was the wonder of the world? Where once was her stern, the rudder-post, with the tiller attached to it, towers out of the water like a gaunt skeleton, and lower down the rudder itself can be seen still intact. For seventy or eighty feet forward the bulwarks and sides have disappeared nearly to the kelson, and all that connects this part of the vessel with her amidships section is the keel, above it the enormous shaft, which, with its casing removed, lies exposed to view. Her bows have also disappeared completely. Of course, ber masts, her funnels and her paddie wheels have all gone long ago. Viewed closely by means of a boat, a vivid realization of her immense strength can be formed. Everything is massive and solid, and it is said that the plates forming both her inner and outer skin—for the Great Eastern was built with a complete outer casing—are as good as when they were originally put in. It is this obvious strength and thoroughness of workmanship and material that makes her demolition all the more

A HAIR-PULLING MATCH.—The wife of John Weikel, a Pennsylvania railroad employe, appeared before Recorder Braker in Camden yesterday with a tale of a hair-pulling match at Atlantic City. She had caused her husband's arrest on a charge of non support. She said he made good wages, but used a large part of it in frequent trips to Atlantic City. She said she became suspicious of these trips, and leaving her children in the care of neighbors went down herself one day last week. Unfortunately for John, his wife ran across him on the boardwalk at the seashers in company with a good looking young woman. Mrs. Weikel "went for" her bushand's companion, and had to be pulled off by force. John escaped to Cam-den, and was arrested. Welkel promised the Recorder that he would stay home and care for his family and was discharged .-
